

Container Diagram

This diagram displays a user interacting with the weather station application and the associated web interface, and the interactions they make with the sensor hardware and external database. The database serves as a backup for the users data, and also serves it to the web interface for later review and analyzing.